TREE OF LIFE
20TH CELEBRATION
20 NOVEMBER 2026

Conway Hall, Red Lion Square, London
WC1R 4RL
9:30am - 17:00pm

The Tree of Life methodology was developed by Ncazelo Ncube-Mlilo in collaboration with David Denborough in 2006. It is often described as a culturally sensitive narrative therapy methodology that helps people to tell their stories in ways that make them stronger and more hopeful about life and the future. It helps children, families, and communities affected by trauma to reconnect with their strengths, identities, values, hopes and dreams. Now used in more than 60 countries, the Tree of Life is internationally recognised as an innovative approach to healing and psychosocial support.

Ncazelo Ncube-Mlilo is an internationally renowned narrative therapist, psychologist, and psychosocial specialist based in Johannesburg, best known for co-developing the globally recognised Tree of Life methodology with David Denborough in 2006. The Tree of Life approach is now used in more than 30 countries to support communities affected by trauma, violence, poverty, HIV and AIDS, and conflict. She is the founder of PHOLA and is widely recognised for her work in trauma-informed care, community healing, and culturally grounded mental health interventions.

David Denborough works as a community worker, teacher and writer/editor for Dulwich Centre and is particularly interested in cross-cultural partnerships which limit the chances of psychological colonization and create possibilities for cross-cultural inventions, such as the Team of Life Narrative Approach and Tree of Life (with Ncazelo Ncube-Mlilo). These collective narrative methodologies seek to assist people to address the effects of traumatic experiences without having to speak directly about them. dd is also vitally interested in how collective narrative practices can spark and/or sustain social movement and in projects that respond to racism and seek to strengthen social cohesion/inclusion. Dd is an Associate Professor at the University of Melbourne, coordinates the Master of Narrative Therapy and Community Work and supports graduate researchers to generate innovative methodologies.

ROOTS IN THE UK

The following people have contributed to entrenching the Tree of Life in mental health services in the UK. They have been inspired by the Tree of Life and have been planting Trees of Life across various UK services. These individuals include Glenda Fredman, Georgia Illiopoulou, Heleni Andreadi, Isabelle Ekdawi, and Angela Bryne in adult services; Eleanor Martin in older adult services; and Gillian Hughes, Lucy Casdagli, Sara Portnoy in children's services.

Dr Angela Bryne is a consultant clinical psychologist at Central and Northwest London NHS Trust, where she leads on the development of community psychology approaches. She also works in the Voluntary and Community Sector with a number of organisations, mainly in East London. She has a passion for improving services for communities who have been historically marginalised and she has been working with the Tree of Life since 2008.

Heleni Georgia Andreadi is a systemic psychotherapist, supervisor, and trainer with over twenty years of experience in adult mental health and children's social care. She currently serves as Head of Family Therapy and Courses Director at the Prudence Skynner Family & Couple Therapy Clinic, SWLSTG NHS Trust. Her work is driven by a commitment to anti-oppressive and anti-stigmatizing practices, focusing on how they shape responsibilities and responses to adversity in public services. She values collaborating with consultants by experience in her clinical practice, training, and writing, and has been using the Tree of Life methodology.

Georgia Illiopoulou is a Systemic & Family Psychotherapist with a strong interest in Narrative Therapy and in people's responses to trauma. She comes from Greece where she grew up in a small town in a loving family. She writes, "I moved to the UK in 2000 for my postgraduate studies. I've worked with adults with HIV and with children and families facing mental health issues. I currently work in a CAMHS team in Children Social Care."

ROOTS IN THE UK

Sara Portnoy and Lucy Casdagli are Consultant Clinical Psychologists who work at University College Hospital in London with young people who have significant health conditions. We were both fortunate enough to work with Glenda Fredman, before she left the service. Lucy together with Glenda, adapted the Tree of Life to run groups with young people who have a diagnosis of diabetes. Sara together with Glenda created the Beads of Life, which was inspired by the Tree of Life She has been running groups for many years with young people with a diagnosis of Cancer. These groups are heavily dependent on our wonderful Peer Mentors who co-facilitate the groups with us. Some of our Peer Mentors will be joining us to talk about their experiences of having been part of these projects.

TESTIMONIES

Working in mental health within the NHS for over two decades, Jenny Chigwende has seen the impact of stigma and psychosocial pressures that can have devastating impacts on adults, children and families. Through Co-chairing the board of the charity 'W12 Together Please' she was excited to have the opportunity to serve the community and to support them to find health and wellbeing solutions that are self-sustaining. She is passionate about Community Psychology, Liberation Psychology and Social Justice. In both the NHS and through the 'W12 Together Please' charity, Jenny has co-produced Tree of Life, COURAGE and O.U.T.T.R.A.G.E.D groups with communities and seen the powerful impact this has had.

Tanya-Louise Graham Matt is a mother, wife, community cultivator, and committed antiracist activist. As a systemic family, couples, and individual therapy practitioner, she has worked extensively with diverse groups, specializing in the Tree of Life methodology for nearly a decade. Her practice focuses on reaching, connecting, and supporting marginalized, racialized, and minoritized communities in both inpatient and outpatient settings across the UK. Through her work, Tanya-Louise fosters resilience, empowerment, and inclusion, ensuring that voices often silenced are heard and valued.

Deji Adeosun is a dedicated youth development leader and Co-Founder of Change in Youth CIC with over 20 years of experience in the voluntary sector and a strong commitment to youth empowerment and systemic change. He is also the Founder and Director of Account Hackney and played a key role in the award-winning Tree of Life workshops supporting the mental health of young people from the African Caribbean community. He is passionate about mentorship, authenticity, and creating meaningful opportunities for young people.

FLOWERS AND FRUITS

Dr Gillian Hughes is a Systemic Family Therapist at the Prudence Skynner Family and Couple Clinic, where she offers therapy, training, and supervision. Her work focuses on narrative practices, liberation approaches to psychology, and supporting marginalised communities through socially and culturally informed methods. She has developed Tree of Life programmes with refugee communities and completed a PhD in 2024 based on this work. Dr Hughes also co-edited the book Liberation Practices: Towards Emotional Wellbeing through Dialogue with Taiwo Afuape.

Dr Kirsty Stubbs is a UK trained Clinical Psychologist passionate about community approaches, collective narrative practice and social justice. Her doctoral research explored Tree of Life facilitators' experiences of using the ToL methodology, across global community contexts, contributing to the growing base of knowledges that highlight the power, impact and uniqueness of the methodology. Kirsty will present the themes and implications of this research, with time to consider the use of narrative questioning and ToL as a research method as well as a research subject.

Dr Binish Khatoon is a qualitative methodologist at University of Manchester with over 10 years of experience in health research, specialising in exploratory qualitative studies focused on understanding lived experiences. Her research approach centres on creating culturally tailored, safe, and empowering spaces through creative arts and narrative therapy methods such as Tree of Life. She is passionate about engaging ethnically minoritised communities in research and building empathetic, non-oppressive relationships with participants throughout the research process.
